Performance Chart

Since Feb 08 2005 up to Jan 25 2006 National Bank of Dubai Composite Index was the benchmark. Starting from January 25 2006, MSCI UAE Domestic Index is the benchmark

Overview and Outlook

The UAE stock markets continued to fall last month, with the Dubai Financial Market (DFM) posting a much larger loss, relative to the Abu Dhabi Securities Market (ADSM). The DFM ended the month with a 15.59% decline, with the ADSM down 3.78%. The end of May did show signs of an initial consolidation phase, with volatility decreasing substantially and the market trading sideways. The commencement of the summer season could have been a factor, but the initial signs of consolidation are present.

Sideways activity has hinted towards the bottoming of the market, but further evidence is needed before your Fund will consider altering its market exposure significantly. The market appears oversold and seems due a technical bounce. Abu Dhabi based pension funds are reported to have led the buying towards the latter stages of the month.

Your fund managed to outperform its benchmark, the MCSI UAE, by 1.43% during the month, declining 8.16%, compared to the MSCI's 9.59%
